Chapter 1 by Desirée Cerritelli

I think it is up to each of us a place, precise rules of life, me, janet woods, I found out that someone has decided as a rule of life loneliness for me. I've never been a very open and sociable girl, but lately something in me i felt I was moving, and it wasn't the pasta with tuna I had undigested lunch, no, it certainly wasn't that.

I, a brilliant student of the school of magic for hybrid Pheriphary, I have a small group of 4 people, Cande, Sama, Lakoma, and I, janet woods brilliant student named nene, I do not know why, but that's okay.

we represent one of the smaller groups of the social division (not democratic) created by Corine, the Corine are hybrid of the highest level, like the teachers, but with fairies powers and coolest.

They are almost young women, very unpleasant, but envy, dress well and have every power that exists, that's all.

the other groups are all hybrids minors, including us, then you know, you create cliques, like me and the 3 mentioned above. It goes for taste, as with ice cream, but then again, we have the powers, the ice cream not. ok I'll stop lol

I know that I'm telling a story as if it were an episode of the Winx, but here we are serious, we are not playing chess on the table. See more of Story Wars we are the pawns, the Corine are the players, a misstep and you are out of the game. In the Potter chessboard, you understand? good. before the fact that lately I feel
